

THE GRADS

We are not stuck on "I Love Me" and songs like that, but still
We want the whole wide world to know the Grads hand us a thrill.
Like modest chaps we really should not holler near and far
Of how our girls are really good—but, darn it all, THEY ARE!

We should not say that we are glad to see them put the skids
To other teams who come along with untried, untrained kids.
We should not say we bulge with pride to see the Grads go through
And score, and sweep the foe aside—but, darn it all, IT'S TRUE!

We really ought to bow in shame to think we prophesy
That they will win that world-wide game in France this next July.
As optimists we sure are choice; of hope we've got our fill;
"They can't win out!" comes Reason's voice—but, darn it all,
